County may close Santos Ranch Road

PLEASANTON — Alameda County officials will check with the county counsel to see what legally can be done to close Santos Ranch Road, supervisor John Murphy said yesterday.

Murphy brought up the issue at the supervisors meeting Tuesday after receiving a letter from Pleasanton councilman Roger McLain about a recent accident on the road.

McLain wrote to Murphy Dec. 19 about an accident which injured three persons Dec. 16. A car with heated brakes failed to stop after descending the steep Santos Ranch Road and a vehicle traveling Foothill Road collided with it. Other accidents have occurred in the past, including one fatality whose survivors sued Alameda County for the road's alleged danger.

Murphy said he previously discussed the road with county public works director Herb Crowle and learned the department would have to obtain clearance from the county counsel's office for any action it would take.

The county counsel will have to investigate the legality of abandoning the road or closing it with a locked gate, said Murphy. He asked for a report on the issue at the supervisors' next meeting Jan. 6.

McLain said in his letter to Murphy that he found it "difficult to understand the apparent reluctance on the part of the county to place a physical barrier across this road at the entrance that would prevent this type of accident from happening."

McLain's letter continued: "Certainly the inconvenience that this would cause property owners that use this road would seem to be small compared to the potential loss of life that we can expect by the continued use of this road.

"I can assure you that I am expressing the concern of a great many parents in Pleasanton who are worried that the next accident on Santos Ranch Road may involve their daughter or son, and if you should determine that it would provide a positive response on the part of the county to this request, I would be only too glad to arrange for the necessary number of signatures on a petition," wrote McLain.

Consultants' fees okayed

LIVERMORE — An unhappy city council Monday night approved an additional $1,500 in the General Plan's consultants fees for their attendance at scheduled public hearings.

The additional funding for the $100,000 study averages $300 per hearing for five hearings and is necessary because the city has used up all the meetings contracted with consultants Grunwald, Crawford and Associates, planning Director George Musso told the council.

"How in the world did we goof this up," asked a disturbed Councilwoman Helen Tirsell, noting that these are the only consultants the city has hired that were not paid through the very end of a study.

In response to City Manager Bill Parness' explanation of an "unanticipated" number of hearings held, Tirsell pointed out many of those meetings were called by the consultants to review General plan task reports.

Councilman John Staley added that when the consultants were selected, "it was made quite clear that a lot of public hearings were expected."

Although Musso assured the council Grunwald and Crawford were obligated to print the final planning area map (following adoption of the General Plan), members asked the city staff to re-read the contract for stipulations on presentation of the final document.

Also in doubt is whether additional staff or office time will be billed to the city.

The $300 per hearing fee covers the attendance of either company president Robert Grunwald or vice-president Don Crawford and one staff member. They usually fly in a private plane from their headquarters in Hanford to Livermore for a hearing and return after the meeting.

Three planning commission public hearings are scheduled for the General Plan in January; an Association of Bay Area Governments review Jan. 7, and a city council public hearing in February.

Council race grows

City employe to run

LIVERMORE — City engineering technician Robert Weissel has declared his candidacy for the city council race in March.

Weissel, a three-year Livermore resident, has worked in the city's public works department for the past year and one half.

There is some question as to whether he could remain in the city's employ if he is elected to the council, said Weissel. But rather than give up his council seat he would try to get his old job back with Kaiser Engineering in Oakland, he explained.

Weissel's campaign manager will be his boss — traffic engineer Rick Dondro.

Part of Weissel's reasons for running for the council lie in the fact he is a city employe.

"I have insight into what's going on and how to get things accomplished. I can cut a lot of red tape and paper work and get things out in a few days that now take weeks or months," he stated.

Weissel added that as a city employe, he can bring more insight to the council meetings.

"I'm somebody behind the scenes. I think I have a better feel for what is going on and what can be done than any of the other candidates running," he declared.

As part of Weissel's city job, he reads the weekly council minutes — a duty that also has inspiried him to run for that body.

"Some of the ideas presented and the things the council members ask for — I don't know where they get the outlandish idea that we do things backwards in the engineering department," he said.

Weissel added the engineering department approached projects from an engineering point of view.

Weissel becomes the ninth candidate to fill the two seats to be vacated on the council. He joins Glen Dahlbacka, Dick Wright, Richard Gower, Dr. Marshall Kamena, Rich Buckley, LaVerne Cave, Dr. Herman Mattern, and Wolfgang Kamp.

As of press time yesterday afternoon, nomination papers had been returned by Gower, Wright, Buckley, and Mattern.

Incumbents city treasurer Fred Noyes and city clerk Dorothy Hock also had filed their nomination papers yesterday.

Mismanagement charges cleared

PLEASANTON — A matter involving alleged mismanagement of the Del Prado Cabana Club by the tract's developer appears to be cleared up.

Del Prado resident Gary Geis had complained last spring to the California Department of Real Estate about allegedly bad management of the club by the developer, Ponderosa Homes.

Geis alleged that management neglected to ask PG&E about a $368 electric bill in a month when the club's pool is closed and a $229 water bill when the pool was not in use. Geis also wondered why the club paid $200 in corporation taxes when the club supposedly is a non-profit corporation and exempt from tax payments.

Paul Cundiff, Deputy Commissioner of the California Department of Real Estate, investigated the matter. He notified Ponderosa Homes earlier this month that he felt no further investigation is warranted at this time. Information turned up in the investigation will be kept on file for future reference "in the event additional developments occur," wrote Cundiff.

Geis was unavailable for comment yesterday, but Frank Brandes, an officer of the cabana club, added details about the investigation.

Brandes, who is a controller for Sears, examined the Ponderosa books in the matter "It may have been that Ponderosa's books were kept improperly but the dues from members were not enough to cover expenses, so Ponderosa Homes anteed up the difference of $8,000 to have the pool maintained properly," said Brandes.

"The developer may have been wasteful with his own money, but not with the dues of members. The real estate investigators talked to me and to Pondersoa Homes and found there was some substance to Geis's complaints, but if they were careless it was with their own money.

"There was substantial good faith on the part of Ponderosa Homes. There's been a complete change of attitude since Ponderosa Homes took over from the previous developer," said Brandes.

Ponderosa Homes controls five of the nine seats on the cabana club's board of directors, but after a new election next month, the homeowners will have a majority of seats on the board, probably seven of the nine, said Brandes.

"The developer believes that the dues collected from members will sustain the operation of the club," said Brandes. "I negotiated an agreement with them last week, still to be acted on by the cabana club board, in which the developer will contribute $3,000 a year, if needed, for operation of the club."

Council race rush is on

PLEASANTON — A rush of council hopefuls returned their filing papers yesterday.

Gene Finch, William Herlihy, Jim Jordan, and Frank Brandes joined Ken Mercer and Roger McLain in the race. Herlihy is an incumbent and McLain was appointed to the council eight months ago to fill a vacancy created when Floyd Mori resigned after his election to the Assembly.

John Wipfli was the only person to enter the treasurer's race. He is the incumbent.

The filing deadline had been set for 5 p.m yesterday, but was extended to noon next Tuesday because one of the incumbents, Mayor Ed Kinney, did not file for re-election. A new state law provides for the filing time extension if an incumbent does not run.

Ski class in Livermore

LIVERMORE — Cross country skiers and mountaineers Marcus Libkind and Kim Grandfield will share their enthusiasm for and skills in the outdoor activities through a ski touring class offered by the Livermore Area Recreation and Park District (LARPD).

The course will be taught with two three-hour classroom sessions on Wednesday and Thursday, Jan. 14 and 15 and Monday and Wednesday, Feb. 2 and 4. Both classes will be held from 7 to 10 p.m. at the Recreation Center, 8th and H streets.

Field trips also are planned as part of the instruction for the Saturdays and Sundays of Jan. 17 and 18 and Feb. 7 and 8

Originally, Libkind and Grandfield hoped to have the trips to Yosemite although Lake Tahoe now is being considered.

Registration for the class begins Monday, Jan. 12 at the Recreation Center The course will cost $9 plus charges for the field trip lodging, transportation, and the rental of equipment. Class size will be limited.

Sessions will include lectures on ski touring equipment and its care as well as ski touring techniques and preparation. Slides and movies will be used to illustrate the lectures.

The field trips will include a day of practicing techniques learned in lectures and a day touring to try out what the students have learned.

Libkind and Granfield are partners in "Sunrise Mountaineering" on First Street, a hiking, backpacking, mountaineering and ski touring store that opened in October. Grandfield is an engineer with General Electric in San Jose. Libkind, a former engineer with GE, minds the store.

City-raised, Libkind got turned on to the wilderness in high school biology. He has been mountaineering for ten years and took up cross-country skiing five years ago.

Grandfield is from a Kansas farm and summer college jobs took him to Idaho as a fire fighter. It was while in Colorado he become involved with mountains and has been an active climber for the past four years. He has skied for nine years; cross-country, four years.

Both have trekked from Baja to Canada and taught a class similar to what they will demonstrate through LARPD in a Los Gatos adult education program last year.

Livermore council actions

LIVERMORE — The city council at its last regular meeting of the year Monday night took the following actions on routine matters:

- Authorized at no additional cost to the city the transfer of all public works and police department employes of the Operating Engineers Local No. 3 from the present Blue Cross health plan to the Operating Engineers Health and Welfare Trust Fund effective Jan. 1.
- Appealed a planning commission variance granted to the Sunset Development Company to continue using an equipment and material yard at Concannon Boulevard and Cordoba Street. The variance request will be reviewed by the council in January.
- Upheld 4-1, Don Miller opposed, the planning commission's variance grant to Earl Mason for Clarence Overaa for rear yard reductions in lots located near Scherman Avenue and Murdell Lane.
- Granted to Norman Marciel the lease of about eight acres of grazing and farm land abutting Kitty Hawk Road near the Livermore Municipal Airport at $14 per acre.
- Authorized solicitation of construction bids for the extention of the East Avenue water main. The extention will allow the interconnection of the city system at Mitra Street to the California Water Service Company system at Buena Vista Avenue. The cost of the project will be shared with the water service company and the city's portion is estimated at $13,700.
- Awarded purchase bids to Codiroli Ford for $3,478.63 for a 1976 model sub- compact pick-up truck and the Hoyt & Buettner Tractor Company for a tractor- loader-backhoe.
- Authorized the condemnation of 24 acres west of Murrieta Boulevard along the Arroyo Mocho chanel (the Woelffel property) for the intended 100 acre community park in the area. Financing will be through a state bond issue grant.
- Authorized the condemnation of a small parcel of property for the grade separation project.
- Learned the two Livermore wine companies were responsive to the council's idea of special city labels on local wines for visiting dignataries. The city staff will design labels for two-bottle boxes.
- Instructed city attorney Bob Logan to give notice to Sunset Development Company president Masud Mehran that he still owes the city $65,000 for the traffic signal at the intersection of Holmes Street and Concannon Boulevard.

Cranes come in handy

Pleasanton got a new post office yesterday, or some of it, anyway. It was a flat site in the morning, but as one neighborhood youngster told The Times, "cranes really come in handy sometimes". These prestressed concrete slabs were standing by mid-afternoon. The site is at Santa Rita Road and Black Avenue.

A Christmas gift from FatRat

Editor's note: FatRat is a tan-and-white rat who lives on North P Street, Livermore. Further adventures will be published as they occur.

FatRat looked up sadly through the Christmas tree branches.

He was hidden all the way under the tree, sitting on a small red package.

A piece of tinsel was tickling his nose. All around him, the tree lights glowed red, yellow, green and blue.

When he looked up, he could see two sad eyes and 38 wiggling whiskers reflected in a shiny silver snowflake.

A tear ran out of one eye. It dribbled down his fur and splashed on the red wrapping paper. FatRat didn't even look down to see where it made a spot.

Here it was, Christmas Eve. There were presents piled under the tree for everyone. There was even a little stocking, hanging high out of reach, that had a piece of smoked cheddar cheese in it, and a juicy walnut.

But what did FatRat have to give his children, Kevin and Rachel, for Christmas?

Nothing.

It wasn't that he hadn't tried. Why, he had worked all month on making a giant nest for Kevin. He had crawled into Kevin's bedsprings and had pulled out all the stuffing.

He worked on it every time they let him out of his cage. It took hours, but finally he got a big pile of fluffy stuffing ready for Kevin to crawl into. Nothing like a soft nest, FatRat always said.

And then Grandma had arrived from New Jersey, her suitcases with big TWA Airlines tags on them

Of course she wanted to put the suitcases under a bed. Of course she had to pick Kevin's bed to stick them under. So much for the nest.

All week long, Kevin and Rachel and Mommy and Grandma had been wrapping packages behind each other's backs. They knew FatRat wouldn't tell, so they let him watch.

There was a blue skateboard for Rachel. A chemistry set for Kevin. A good-smelling potion from the witchcraft shop in San Francisco for Grandma (Mommy said it was supposed to keep away danger and bring peace and love, but FatRat didn't believe it.)

FatRat knew the cheese and the walnut were a surprise for him. His mouth watered at the thought.

But what could a little rat give to the people who had loved him and scratched his back and fed him celery all year long? And especially to Kevin, his boy, who did all the hard work like cleaning his cage and changing his water.

There was Christmas music on the radio The tree, which Kevin and his frlend Kent had cut down at Volkmann's Tree Farm, smelled sweet and spicy.

FatRat could hardly stand it. He was just about to creep upstairs to his home when he heard Kevin and Rachel whispering.

"Mommy's gonna kill us," he heard Kevin say. "She loved that bell."

"So did I," Rachel said, almost crying. "It was my favorite awnament."

Rachel was six and sometimes had trouble with big words.

She was holding a big gold bell on her lap. The bell had a red velvet ribbon and a clapper that was on a long cord.

FatRat remembered it from last Christmas. You pulled the cord all the way out and let it go. It would slowly wind back up and a music box inside the bell would tinkle "Jingle Bells."

But now the cord was all the way out and it wasn't winding up. It was jammed.

FatRat hopped over to take a closer look. It was such a big bell that he could stick his head right into the motor.

He could see where, sure enough, the gold cord was pulled just a little bit off the track.

Just then Mommy decided to get suspicious. "Awfully quiet out there in the living room," she called out from the kitchen where she was finishing the dinner.

"You kids wouldn't be peeking at the presents. would you?"

"No," said Kevin.

FatRat reached his paw in and tried to move the cord. But it was really stuck. He was afraid to crawl too far into the motor because he knew that as soon as it got unjammed, all those gears and things would start turning again. A little rat could get badly pinched in there.

"Why don't you turn on that Christmas bell? I always love to hear it on Christmas Eve."

"So do I," said Rachel sadly. Kevin poked her.

That made Rachel drop the bell on the floor, with poor FatRat inside of it. The brave rat held onto the cord with both paws as it hit. Then he had to let go.

There was one weak tinkle. Then another!

"...gle all the way, plink plink, Oh what fun, plink, it is to ride.." went the bell.

Kevin and Rachel said together:

"WHEW."

Then Kevin scooped his small white friend off the floor and asked if he was hurt.

As a matter of fact, FatRat had pinched one ear. But he didn't mind.

He had probably saved Kevin and Rachel from spending Christmas Eve in the corner, if Mommy had ever found out what they did to the bell.

Grandma came in with some cookies, and said how nice the bell sounded.

Kevin and Rachel didn't say anything.

But in the soft glow of the Christmas lights, they slipped FatRat all their crumbs.

Can man alter the climate?

LIVERMORE — Researchers at the Lawrence Livermore Laboratory have added support to claims that man can alter the world's climate through regional activities.

Drs. Gerald Potter, Hugh Ellsaesser, Michael MacCracken and Frederick Luther of the lab's atmospheric sciences division used computer modeling techniques to calculate possible global climatic effects of large-scale deforestation of the tropics.

The results, reported in the Dec. 25 issue of "Nature," indicated a slight world-wide cooling averaging 0.2 degree Centigrade, with the greatest cooling (more than one degree Centigrade) occuring in tropical latitudes at an altitude of about 40,000 feet.

The results also showed rainfall decreasing by more than 20 centimeters per year at the equator and by one or two centimeters per year in the north temperate zone.

The climatic effects came mainly from the increased reflection of sunlight back to space that was assumed to occur if vegetation in the tropics were substantially reduced.

The computer model used by the researchers originally was developed by MacCracken as a doctoral thesis and later adapted by a Livermore group under Department of Transportation support for assessing the climatic impact of possible fleets of supersonic transports (SST).

The Livermore reserachers examined the possible consequences of deforestation because, according to their "Nature" article, "of all the various mechanisms suggested by which man might change the planetary climate, the removal of tropical rain forests to increase arable acreage seems to be one of the more imminent."

- These rain forests cover about 34 per cent of the area lying between five degrees north and five degrees south of the equator. Some forest deletion for firewood already has occured in parts of South America, Central Africa and Asia.

Increased reflectivity from deforestation, according to the simulation, would result in lower temperatures and less evaporation and rainfall near the equator.

Reduced equatorial rainfall would have a particularly important implication for the rest of the world: a reduction in the "latent" heat normally released when rain (liquid water) is formed from water vapor.

This heat helps drive the massive air circulation currents between the tropics and the higher latitudes — currents which carry both warmth and mositure to all parts of the globe.

The simulation showed that following deforestatign, these currents would become weaker, cooler and drier, carrying less heat and moisture from the equatorial to the higher latitudes.

In the "Nature" article, the researchers noted the fallibility of computer simulation and stressed that their work "should be viewed primarily as indications of possible change and not as absolute indicators."

However, they pointed out that the simulated sequence of events is consistent with accepted meterological concepts.

They also noted in the article that their computer model, known as the Zonal Atmospheric Model (ZAM-2) has confirmed the results of a climatic modeling experiment done by researchers at the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) to simulate the consequences of enlarging subtropical deserts.

The LLL desert simulation was reported by Ellsaesser at a recent meeting of the American Geophysical Union.

Artist creates award winning originals

Artist Lorelei Tolvtvar stands with some of her work which is on display at Franklin Savings on Hopyard.

Fulfilling a life-long ambition which was ignited at the California College of Arts and Crafts when she was a teenager, artist Lorelei Tolvtvar has, in barely seven years, created a fantasy world of award winning original paintings.

Waiting until her youngest was in school, she took her first class in 1968 in San Leandro with Mrs. Eleanor de Hass Johnson and Mrs. Mercedes Smith. In two years she was taking show awards and decided to seriously study at Chabot College with Mr. Mosher and Mr. Kamelgarn.

But it wasn't until she moved to Pleasanton in 1972 and started taking art classes with Barbara Havelaar through the recreation department, that she was encouraged, by her instructor, to have a one-man show.

She currently belongs to the Pleasanton Art League which awarded her a first place in abstract any media in 1973. She has also been recognized with honors by the San Leandro Chamber of Commerce, San Leandro Art Association and won a third place in oil in a Hawaiian contest in 1970.

Lorelei Tolvtvar also delves in hobby art — making miniature animals and birds which she calls "Tiny Trifles." She enjoys experimenting with a variety of media. Besides the acrylics and oils, she uses a sand technique to finish some of her paintings. Her most recent interest is a class in ceramics at the cultural arts center in Pleasanton under the instruction of Mark Pignolet.

Describing her paintings she says, "Each one is done with a different feeling and approach because each one may tell a story or be a fantasy."

With two boys in Amador, one girl at Harvest Park School, plus a variety of pets, including a Boa Constrictor (named "B.C."), one can imagine she has a lot of fantastic stories to tell.

Warm wishes from Wells

Parents of students from Wells Intermediate School of the Murray School District in Dublin were treated with warm wishes and entertainment from the pupils during their Christmas Program presented on Dec. 18.

The Wells Jazz Band (above) did a fine performance of "Rock Around the Clock" and "Tailgate Ramble" under the direction of Jerry Lapinski, the Bicentennial Band director also, while the chorus (right) under the direction of Mrs. Dorothy Bushakra spread the feeling of Christmas with their selection of great Christmas carols.

The Drama department displayed their talents with "Twelve Days of Christmas" and "Department Store Santa" under the direction of Jim Freeland. Piano accompanist was Michelle Borecek.

Admission is $3 for adults and $1.50 for children 12 and under. The performance is under the auspices of the Chabot College Hostesses and the Hayward Area Concert Association.

Auditions for "Don't Drink The Water," a Pleasanton Playhouse production scheduled for March, will be held Monday, Jan. 5 and Tuesday, Jan. 6 at the Veterans Memorial Auditorium in Pleasanton.

The Woody Allen comedy has 12 roles, mostly men, and will also require numerous backstage craftsmen — makeup, costumes, scenery construction, sound and lighting.

The production, to be directed by Cliff Beyer, will have three performances in March on dates to be announced, at the Sunol Valley Country Club.

Auditions on Jan. 5 and 6 will start at 8 p.m.

Art classes

The Pleasanton Recreation Department will be offering a variety of art classes which will begin on Jan. 12. Registration will take place beginning Jan. 1.

Interested parties in participating in the classes are encouraged to look over the booklets which will be mailed out the first part of January. Fee classes may be paid for at the time of registration. Questions concerning the classes may be directed to the Rec Department by calling 846-3203.

Cartoon day

The Dublin-San Ramon Junior Women's Club is sponsoring a "Cartoon Day" at Fredriksen School on Monday, Dec. 29 from 1 to 3 p.m.

Popcorn and coke will be sold. Tickets at 50 cents each may be purchased from any Junior or by calling 828-5498 or 828-0586.

Front Row

By RON MCNICOLL

The nightly eight o'clock concert of the bells finally stopped after ten minutes and the nave fell silent. The religious atmosphere of the Livermore Presbyterian Church was appropriate for what happened next.

Malvina Reynolds, 75 year old songwriter and folksinger with a youthful heart, spent the next two hours showing why morality is never dead and why humanism is always more fun than the machines and systems which the technocrats keep trying to impose on our daily lives.

To attend the Malvina Reynolds concert last Friday was to cheer for her and to cheer for her; was to applaud the victory of life, wit, wisdom, humor, sarcasm, and just plain self-buoyancy over all those forces out there that try to take it away from us.

She displayed a wide range of topics in her songs. "The Whale" was written to help the current "Save the Whales" movement. At one time there were four million whales, now there are a few thousand. "As the whale goes, and the dolphin,/ and the ocean, and the forest,/ so will we," she sang, as the point sunk in about the balance of nature.

"Look on the Sunny Side" was a humorous song, a "good news, bad news" sort of joke. The bad news is the price of sugar is rising. The good news is you shouldn't use it anyway because it rots your teeth and can hurt your body. "Don't drink those colas, they will eat away your molars/ and the googlies and the twinkies/ they will put you on the blinkies/ pass them by." The kiddie type words are a Malvina trademark, a child-like playfulness being one of her songwriting virtues. As Aesop once said, "Sock it to 'em with simple fables."

Malvina was a practicing feminist long before the current upswing in feminism. She sang several beautiful feminist songs. My favorite was "We Don't Need the Men," with its reminder that we men are just sex objects anyway — "They'll look cute in a bathing suit/ on a billboard in Manhattan."

"Rosie Jane," a song about abortion, was addressed to women only, with the added invitation that "any man who is present may listen/ any priest, any public official, any physician / but it gives him no license to touch us/ we make the decision."

Her five year-old song, "Skagit Valley Forever" presented the classic conflict between developers and nature. She visited the Skagit Valley which was threatened with flooding by a power dam designed to serve the increasing power use on the Seattle power grid. "Skagit Valley, Skagit Valley, Ray Williston is selling you away,/ Skagit Valley, Skagit Valley/ They would turn you to a mud pond/ To run the Coca Cola coolers in Seattle, USA."

Personal problems don't escape her wit, either. She talks about depression in "There's a Bottom Below." It goes, "Do you think you've hit bottom? / Do you think you've hit bottom?/ Oh, no,/ There's a bottom below ... You sit at a party/ And watch the fun,/ It don't touch you none/ Cause you're off and gone/ Down." It's nice to know I'm not the only one.

"Little Boxes" is her signature, she said. She wrote it about a ticky-tacky housing tract near San Francisco and it has become a classic made popular by Pete Seeger and other folksingers. In fact, the song introduced the word "ticky-tacky" to the American vocabulary. Most of the several hundred persons in the audience Friday night lives in those ticky-tacky boxes and sang right along with Malvina about the people in the boxes going to the university where "they were put in boxes/ and they all came out the same."

My favorite song was "The Turtle Song." I can't remember the words and I don't have them at hand, but the moral was that if you knock the turtle hard, he or she will retreat into his or her shell, but if you treat a turtle really nice, she or he will respond accordingly. To me, that's the essence of Malvina Reynolds' humanism.

It was appropriate that a humanist group like the Livermore Unitarian Fellowship sponsored her concert (proceeds to the LUF building fund) and that the Presbyterian church graciously allowed use of its fine facility.

NIGHT TIMES

VALLEY
PLEASANTON TIMES

DUBLIN-SAN RAMON
PLEASANTON-LIVERMORE

Introducing 'Night Times'

Finest fare featured

With this edition we are introducing the Night Times section to the Valley/Pleasanton Times. The leading newspaper of the Amador Valley has been careful to select only the finest restaurants to be in this section. Each of the advertisers featured here has the approval of our restaurant editor, Harold Huer.

The advertisers you see featured received at least three stars from Mr. Huer. Some four. Some five.

In all fairness we do not list Mr. Huer's selections — as he is only human. One thing you can count on, any establishment advertised here is a first rate place for dinner. Or lunch.

Another item is that these restaurants represent the most friendly places in the valley. The Times was careful in selecting advertisers for this very special section. Natural sour — pusses were purposely left out. If there isn't a big smile at the door — who needs it?

The restaurants you see advertised in the Times are the very best. Others may qualify later. It is never too late — if the service is there.

Restauranteur - turned - reporter Ron Rodriguez will be contributing his double-shot of comments on cocktails and canapes in the valley.

His weekly "inside-view" of the business will be a boon to value conscious diners.

And that, of course, is what the Valley/Pleasanton Times has in mind with our new restaurant section.

Smorga Bob's Smorgasbord

Featured here is Margie and Gayle Corey, proprietors of SMORGA BOB'S in Livermore on First Street near the freeway. The Coreys stress quality and all you can eat at their popular restaurant. It is strictly smorgasbord. And the price is right in this time of runaway inflation. When you open the door you are always greeted with enthusiasm, it's the only way they know how to start the day.

Three squares a day, Partner

Cactus Jack's, the popular restaurant on First St. in Livermore, features breakfast daily from 7 A.M. to 11 A.M. Watch the Valley Times for weekly special on breakfast and lunch. One of the coupons can save you money.

Cactus Jack's is open 7 A.M. to 10 P.M. daily. They feature a complete selection of beverages including beer, wine, orange juice, hot chocolate, coffee, Fanta, Tab, 7 Up, Coke, Lemonade, etc. Pastries are also featured.

A special spaghetti dinner is planned for the future. A complimentary glass of wine will come with this offering. And there is always plenty of parking at Cactus Jack's.

At this restaurant you may build your own salad, which can be alot of fun.

SHIFT GARBAGE DAYS DURING HOLIDAYS

Changes in the collection of garbage from throughout the city during the holiday weeks have been announced by Pleasanton Garbage Co.

Patrons who regularly have pick up service on Thursdays will be collected on Friday, Dec. 26 this week; those regularly scheduled for Friday will have their garbage collected Saturday, Dec. 27.

The same one day delay in collection will prevail next week.

Valley Navy officer wins Cragie award

Capt. Angelo R. Petoletti of Livermore received the 1975 Andrew Craigie Award in Washington, D.C. earlier this month during the 82nd annual meeting of the Association of Military Surgeons of the United States.

Petoletti, the chief of pharmacy service at the Naval Regional Medical Center in Oakland, was cited for his "outstanding contributions in the advancement of professional pharmacy in the federal government."

The Lederle Laboratories-sponsored award honors Andrew Craigie, the first Apothecary General of the military, who served under General George Washington during the Revolutionary War.

A silver plaque and honorarium were presented to petoletti during an awards ceremony recently.

The Captain received his pharmacy education at Rutgers University College of Pharmacy and a degree in psychology from Rutgers College of Arts and Sciences. He currently works as a volunteer in drug abuse education, alcoholism prevention and other general health community programs in the Bay Area.

Petoletti lives with his family on Brookfield Drive in Livermore.

FAMILY CIRCUS

astrograph

by Bernice Bede Osol

For Thursday, Dec. 25, 1975

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Relax. Enjoy yourself today. Though some worldly matters may clamor for attention, set them aisde. They can be attended to later.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your first responsibility is to your family today. Once they're happy, take care of being a jolly good fellow with others.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) This will be a fun day for you socially. However, try not to indulge too heavily in all the goodies. Don't try to cram the whole season into one day.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Take time to enjoy yourself today. Fretting over whether the family is having a good time will diminish your fun.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Christmas comes once a year, so enjoy, enjoy. The workaday world will still be there tomorrow.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You could be caught up in the spirit of the season and make an overly generous return for a small favor. Let reason rule emotion.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Before you get caught up in the activities of this busy day, fulfill your obligations to one who is older. Then you can be carefree.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) If you happen to receive an extremely large gift today, be tactful in talking about it to those who may not be as fortunate.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You'll be happier today with older people who appreciate the day for what it is, rather than with those preoccupied with their ambitions.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Others are apt to treat you more generously than you anticipated today. Don't look for hidden motives. They're doing it because they like you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You could displease your mate by making some last-minute changes in what you've decided to do. Keep peace. Stick to what you agreed upon.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Spending the day with those for whom you have deep emotional ties would be the wiser course, but lure of the bright lights may be too much to resist.

your birthday

Dec. 25, 1975

You're going to form an important alliance this coming year, probably with someone much older than yourself. This person will be an enormous help to your career.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

As any reader of Dickens knows Old Scrooge became a great believer in the yuletide spirit and could be found playing bridge with the Cratchits every Christmas.

His six notrump opening can be explained by the fact that 29 points look even better after imbibing a reasonable amount of Christmas cheer and the Cratchits were good hosts.

He looked at the dummy quickly and saw that if both minor suits broke he could take all 13 tricks. Suppose neither one broke. If one defender was long in both, a squeeze could develop.

Scrooge looked at Tiny Tim and said, "Today is Christmas, Let me give you this nice first trick." Then he let the king of spades hold.

It turned out that Scrooge's self-proclaimed generosity was on a par with the preconversion Scrooge.

East had to discard a heart on that second spade. Scrooge ran off four heart tricks and the fourth heart squeezed Tiny Tim who sat East. He had to throw a diamond or a club and Scrooge had his slam.

Ask the Jacobys

A Florida reader wants to know why South seems to get all the good hands in bridge columns.

The answer is that it has been customary for South to be declarer. The declarer usually has a good hand so South winds up with good hands nearly all the time.

The way to treat a lady — Nickerson

How has the EBAL handled increasing demands for sports parity since the advent of that emancipation proclamation for women known as Title IX?

Remarkably well, says Elinor Nickerson. In fact, if she were passing out report cards in the area of sports opportunities for females, Elinor would give the league an A.

That's what she'll say in a self-commissioned white paper on the subject which could become the EBAL's declaration of principles.

Elinor is part of the coaching staff at San Ramon High School. She cajoles, prods and harangues for girls' sports. With direction from no one, she is launching a report on the status of her first love that will be published in February. It will detail steps taken on behalf of female athletes by the EBAL. And it will speculate on the future of girls' sports in the league.

The three or four-page summary could wind up at the bottom of a magazine rack in the Nickerson's Alamo home, dismissed as a piece of self-serving feminist puffery.

But high school faculties and administrations are well acquainted with the zeal and caustic charm of Elinor. Chances are they will take notice of her critique, and perhaps adopt it as an official statement of objectives.

Elinor will seek all manner of assistance in mapping out her blueprint for the future. But she won't allow it to become a corner shelf dust collector. Her words and phrases will have no official impact. But in the realm of high school athletics, they could wind up wielding the influence of a legislative enactment.

"I can picture years from now a checkup of Title IX," Elinor says. "And this will be something in writing on what's been done, and what we're doing."

What's been done so far is quite satisfying, according to Elinor. The report she's drafting for athletic directors and principals will speak of EBAL girls' sports in glowing terms. The league offers female competition in tennis, volleyball, gymnastics, softball, basketball, swimming, track and cross country. More activities may be on the drawing board.

"I'm really encouraged about what's happened in our league," Elinor says. "That doesn't mean there's no room for improvement. But I've been involved here for four years, and I'm so pleased I feel like bragging.

"I could give you tales of anger or distaste, but in the end, the answer has been 'yes' for girls sports. The EBAL has done a heckuva good job."

Elinor's praise should spur welcome relief among the top officials of the EBAL. Since Title IX of the federal education code dictated that opportunities for all students be equal, including athletic endeavors, they have been under siege.

It has been the same for school administrators throughout the nation. First came instant demands for girls' sports, supported by threat of lawsuits. Then followed the grim word of business agents who complained that the coffers were already being drained by the boys.

All of this was climaxed by the inevitable backlash from the males, and their coaches and parents. They balked at sharing play fields and gymnasiums with young ladies. There was an uproar at the suggestion that girls be given some of the prime practice and game times. And just recently, there have been demands that the boys be accepted on girls' teams.

In these tumultuous formative years of girls' athletics, administrators may find Elinor Nickerson's summary a welcome balm.

But they may read it at arms length for she has been as abrasive as the rest in championing the cause. Elinor insists, however, that her upcoming report will create no rancor among EBAL cohorts.

"This is not a paper to anger," she says; "but to show what we're doing. It's just a simple statement of what our league has done and will be doing."

It will include suggested improvements to hasten the boom in girls' athletics, she says.

The report will call for more female athletic directors (there are four in the league) and the barring of girls from boys teams when there are other opportunities for females.

It will also recomend against an ironic trend, sports discrimination against boys. The young ladies enjoy volleyball, gymnastics and softball as after school sports unavailable to boys. The inequity should be resolved, Elinor says, for the sake of the boys, and also to prevent the undermining of girls programs.

In her report Elinor will also commend the EBAL for isolating female athletics from current financial miseries. When the league met to ponder budget-saving measures this month, it refused to cut back financial allottments for girls, she said.

"It was a real tribute to the need for girls' sports."

DUCK HUNTERS have been trying to cope with bluebird weather. But while the season has not been exactly "ducky," most hunters enjoy getting out and away from it all, whether they return with any edible wildfowl or not.

HIGH PRODUCERS in our general area for wildfowl during the past couple of weeks are as follows: Joice Island, 287 ducks, no geese, and a hunter average of 3.8 birds; Colusa, 831 ducks, 48 geese, average 3.1; Sacramento, 2030 ducks, 139 geese, average 2.9; Los Banos, 875 ducks, 81 geese, average 2.8; and Volta, 1083 ducks, 8 geese, average 2.7.

Not many geese have been taken, overall. Did you get your share?

'TWAS THE NIGHT Before Christmas, or almost, and some of you may still be wondering just what to get some member of the family or a friend.

Looking for a gift in the $4 to $9 range? Something that will fit into a stocking? Something that will give pleasure all year? Then why not a 1976 California fishing license, on sale now at Department of Fish and Game offices and with license agents throughout the state.

You can get the inexpensive $4 license which permits fishing in the ocean, or for an additional $2 you can get the inland waters stamp affixed. This stamp permits fishing for all species except trout and salmon.

For that someone special you can obtain the trout and salmon stamp for only $3 more, a total of $9 for a year of pleasure.

You should be prepared to provide the name, address, age and physical description of the person for whom you wish to buy the gift license.

IF YOU DO your own re-loading, you might like to experiment with cast bullets for your 38 Special. A low velocity for target work (between 300 and 600 F.P.S.) has low noise level, low recoil, and excellent accuracy out to 20-25 yards. This type of load needs no crimp (easy on brass). These loads need to be cast very hard (linotype) for these bullets. It's best you slug the bore of your 38, and size slugs to that exact diameter.

One of the best is Lyman's bullet mould No. 358101; weighs 77 to 79 grains (it's short and flat, sort of like a thick washer) but it shoots well. I like this wadcutter in front of 1.5 grains of Bullseye powder.

Another good round is made up by using Lee Precision Mould No. 358-82-WC wadcutter, still with 1½ grains Cullseye and no crimp. These light loads are good for youngsters, or for teaching your wife or girlfriend to use a handgun.

Best Wishes for a Happy Holiday Season!

Matadors tuned for Tracy Tournament

Gearing up for the Tracy Basketball Tournament Friday, Granada High dumped its alumni team, 88-67 in an exhibition Tuesday night at the Alameda County Fairgrounds.

The win was actually the fifth without defeat for the Matadors this year, though the game was not listed on their schedule, and probably won't count on the records.

Nevertheless it provided Granada an opportunity to smooth out the rough spots for what should be a rough tournament. The Matadors open Friday at Tracy with Lincoln of Stockton at 4:30.

It will be the first official contest in a week for Granada, after a defeat of Las Lomas last Thursday. The Matadors won decisively, but played shabbily. They actually trailed Las Lomas by 13 points in the first half.

Against the alumni, however, Granada surged to a 30-9 lead after one quarter, and never trailed thereafter.

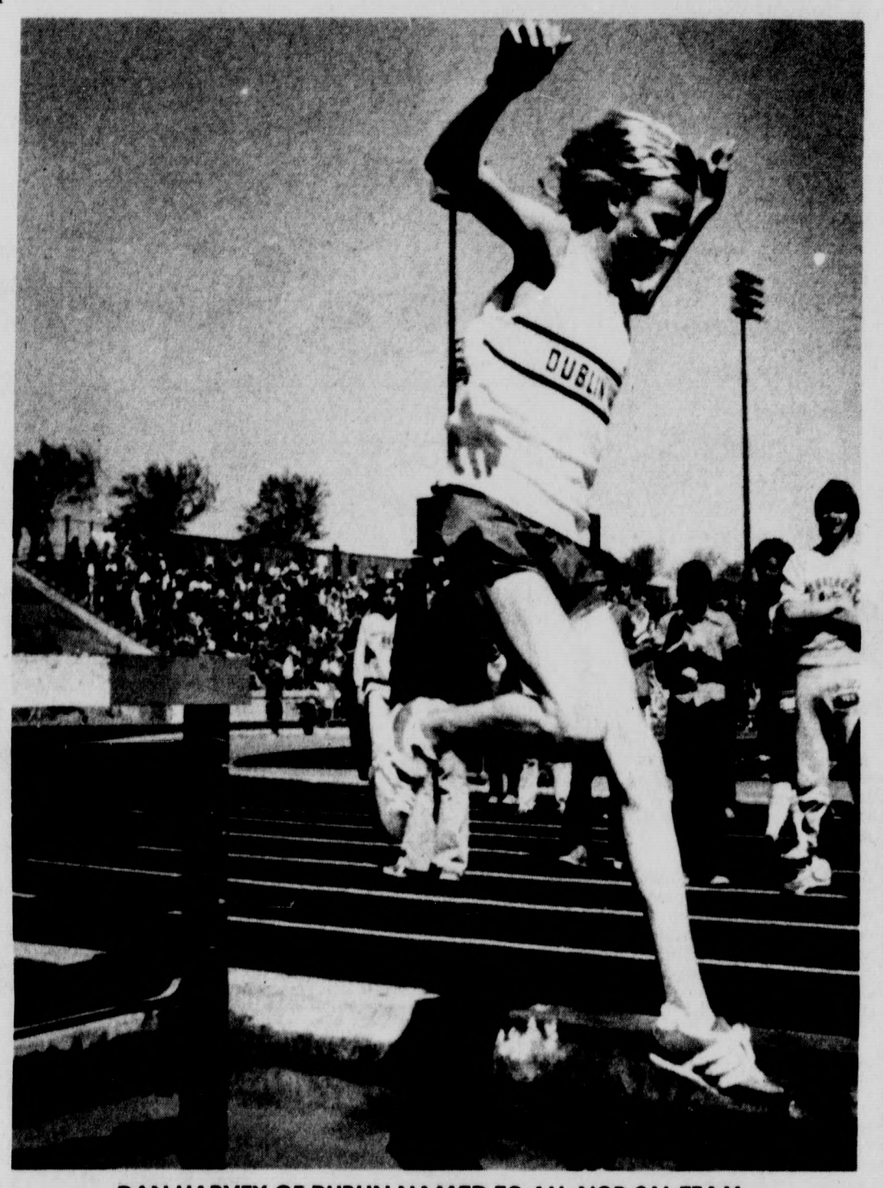
Scott Campbell and Ken Ebert paced the Matadors with 14 points apiece Joe Wujek poured in 12.

For the alumni, Mark Lehman scored 12 points, Steve Goodman 10, and Howie Marion and Jay Schoneke, seven apiece.

In a preliminary game, Granada's girls' varsity continued to dominate Mission Valley Athletic League competition by dropping Irvington, 34-25. The victory followed Granada's dramatic win last weekend in the MVAL tournament. The Matadors were the only outside team invited and tourney officials are doubting the wisdom of their choice.

Granada defeated Mission San Jose in the overtime championship game. The Matadors nipped Irvington in a preliminary game by scoring in the last second.

Lynn Bousilman led the charge for Granada Wednesday with eight points.



DAN HARVEY OF DUBLIN NAMED TO ALL-NOR CAL TEAM
Only EBAL cross country runner selected this year

Dublin harrier honored

Dublin's Dan Harvey was has been named to the All-Northern California High School cross-country team for the 1975 season.

Harvey, a senior, finished fourth in the competitive North Coast Section finals. He took the East Bay Bay Athletic League meet and was second to Kevin Searls of College Park in the sub-section meet.

No other EBAL runner was named to the firt team. However, seven other North Coast athletes were selected to the all-star squad. Leading the way was section champion Hal Schulz of NCS titleist Redwood of Marin County. Schultz' teammate Rod Berry was selected, along with Searls, Phil Hornig of Castro Valley, Mike Smith of Newark, Tom Smith of Mission San Jose and Dave Mihaloff of Redwood.

Schultz was named Outstanding Senior while Tim Holmes of Downey High of Modesto was selected Runner of the Year and Outstanding Junior.

Berry and Searls finished second and third, respectively, in the NCS finalst behind Schultz.

Berry was named Outstanding Sophomore and Carlos Carrasco of Mt. Pleasant of San Jose was selected the Outstanding Freshman. Carrasco climaxed his season with an outstanding 9.31.1 clocking.

The Sac-Joaquin and Central Coast Sections followed the North Coast Section with seven picks apiece. San Francisco, Oakland and the Northern Section failed to place any individuals on the squad The Central Coast Section dominated the second-team selections eight individuals. Sophomore Bob Love of Carlmont led the picks.

NCS leads picks on grid All-Stars

Granada High School may have taken second in the North Coast Section 4-A football playoffs this past season but that feat apparently failed to impress the Citizens Savings Athletic Foundation All-Northern California Board members.

Recently the foundation committee members selected a 62-man All-Northern California team and not a single Granada or East Bay Athletic League player was picked.

However, the North Coast Section dominated the selections with 29 picks to 18 for the Sac-Joaquin Section and eight for the Central Coast. The Central Section had four selections, the Northern Section two, San Francisco one and Oakland none.

Robbie Kahuani of Alameda High won the outstanding offensive player award. The 6-foot, 175 pound running back gained 1,472 yards in 6½ games before being injured. He also scored 21 touchdowns and averaged 8.9 yards per carry.

Other Southern Alameda County athletes on the "dream team" were Mission San Jose's Sean Sullivan and Brian Morrow, Washington's Conrad Jepson and Marina's Bob Cardenas and Tom Riewerts. Sullivan and Cardenas are running backs, Morrow a center, Riewerts an end and Jepson is a defensive down lineman.

Stagg of Stockton had the most player selections with four picks. Cordova of Sacramento County followed with three. Many observers believe that Cordova and Stagg are among the top five prep teams in the state.

Cordova has a 23-game winning streak going. The Lancers won the Capital City playoffs with a resounding 36-6 win over Highlands at UC-Davis last month.

Several teams had two players selected to the all-star squad. Among those were North Coast Section 4-A and 2-A champions Pinole Valley and Alhambra. Pinole Valley placed offensive guard Mike Smullens (6-foot, 186 pounds) and down lineman Jeff Taylor, a 6-foot-3, 230 pound giant. Alhambra's representatives were quarterback John Lucido and wide receiver David Baum, a 6-2, 180 pounder.

Clayton Valley, which lost to Pinole Valley in the 4-A semi-finals, also placed two players on the squad. Tackle Cam Wooldridge, a 6-2, 240 pounder, also made last year's squad. The other Eagle player was defensive back Ron Coccimiglio. Coccimigilio was named co-defensive player of the year along with linebacker Bob Carl of Lodi, a 6-2, 180 pound Sac-Joaquin Section star.

There were five quarterbacks besides Lucido on the squad. Probably the most outstanding was junior Rich Campbell of San Jose's Santa Teresa High School. Campbell threw 26 touchdown passes in leading the Saints to a 10-1 record. A 6-5, 200 pounder, Campbell is another in a long line of quarterback standouts from the Santa Clara Valley. He has been compared favorably to former Santa Clara standouts Jim Plunkett and Steve Bartowski, both of whom play in the National Football League now.

Alan Regier of Mt. Eden of Hayward is another one of the quarterbacks selected. A 6-1, 175 pounder, he led Mt. Eden to the Hayward Area Athletic League crown and second place in the North Coast 2-A playoffs to Alhambra.

Red carpet treatment

Jerry and Lucy Dargert (right) literally rolled out the red carpet for Dublin Chamber of Commerce Directors when the couple's El Diablo Floor Covering firm joined the chamber last week. Maid of Dublin Louise Hodges cut the carpet while newly elected directors Mary Stewart, Ron "Cone King" Pacheco and Paul Moffatt helped hold the roll. # Health Systems Agency nears

Applications are being prepared for a new two-county Health Systems Agency which is designed to improve health services for Alameda and Contra Costa County residents.

The new agency, in the planning stages since October. is hoping to get $400,000 to fund planning and review, followed by about $1 million a year "to promote development of needed health resources in the two counties," according to Norma Satten, executive director of the Alameda County Comprehensive Health Planning Council (the agency to be superseded by the Health Systems Agency.)

A public hearing will be held on the application 7:30 p.m. Monday, Jan. 5, at the State Department of Health building, first floor auditorium, 2151 Berkeley Way, Berkeley.

Members of the public will have a chance to express their opinion on the $400,000 application, both orally and through written statements.

The primary purpose of the required new agency is to provide effective health planning, promote development of needed health resources and to reduce documented inefficiencies through implementation of apency plans.

The goals are to: improve the health of area residents; increase access to services including removal of geographic, architectural and transportation barriers; increase the acceptability, continuity and quality of health services provided; restrain increases in the cost of providing health services; and prevent unnecessary duplication of health resources.

A coordinating committee of Alameda and Contra Costa county residents has been meeting since Oct. 15 to prepare recommendations for the compositions, structure and staffing of the proposed agency.

The 32-member committee included representatives from the two county governments, the two existing comprehensive health planning councils, the major health provider organizations and representatives of various community groups.

The proposed new agency will be private and nonprofit. The 30-member governing body will include 17 consumers and 13 providers, six consumers to be directly elected from "underserved" communities.

Both counties' governments are preparing an application for a health systems agency based on the concept nf a public regional planning body under a joint powers agreement.

CALIFORNIA: THE ONCE AND FUTURE STATE

The last frontier

'California is a place in which a boom mentality and a sense of . . . loss meet in uneasy suspension; in which the mind is troubled by some buried . . . suspicion that things had better work here, because here, beneath that immense bleached sky, is where we run out of continent! — Joan Didion

By John Grimond

Things do work in California: it is one of the great success stories of modern times. But things also go wrong, and one of the things that has gone wrong is the very fact that Californians are running out of continent.

They have already run out of new migrants, new jobs and perhaps new riches: now they find there are limits to fresh air, clean water and open space. In the past such problems have been met with the prodigious vitality and ingenuity of mind that make up the "boom mentality." Now all that seems in doubt.

Does California in fact have the ability to find solutions to the problems posed by a new set of circumstances? Does it even know which way it wants to go? The rest of the world will want to know, for we have always looked to California to point the way ahead.

Outside interest in California started with a newspaper article about the flakes of gold found in a stream in the foothills of the Sierra Nevada in January, 1848. The influx of forty-niners to the Mother Lode country that followed was the start of a migration that reached its zenith in the 25 years after 1942, during most of which prospective Californians were arriving in the golden state at the rate of almost 1,000 a day.

By the time that flood had dwindled to a trickle in 1970, there were 20 million Californians with a gross state product larger probably than that of all but five nations in the world, and California enjoyed a higher income per head ($4,505) than any country on earth.

All these people generated more than money. They brought with them, it was said, a desire to forget their roots "back East" and a readiness to adopt any means, no matter how unconventional, of extending the frontiers of civilization. The society they created was one of firsts and ultimates, in which revolutionaries burgeoned with reactionaries, developers with conservationists, scholars, scientists and weapon manufacturers with pornographers, film stars and religious maniacs. Motor cars and real estate were the popular gods. Yet California remained America's foremost agricultural state with vast tracts of unspoiled land. Californians took to drinking vodka before anyone else; they also took to student revolt (at Berkeley in 1964), to ghetto riots (in Watts in 1965) and to Indian militancy (on Alcatraz in 1969). Credit cards, triple garages, dune buggies and topless shoeshines rooted and flourished under the California sun long before they were heard of elsewhere. So too did the Friends of the Earth, the Sierra Club from which they evolved, and Erhardt Seminars Training (est), the most fashionable current means of parting neurotics from $250.

California gave us the Black Panthers, flower children and Charles Manson. It also gave us Richard Nixon and a White House staff who evolved their unusual style on the campus of the University of Southern California.

Such phenomena were mesmerizing for journalists. But they were described at the expense of some equally interesting, if less glamorous, events taking place elsewhere on America's West coast. The states of Washington and Oregon, aware perhaps of the cost in terms of despoilation of California's headlong growth, have in the past 10 years been quietly taking steps to prevent the Californication of the beautiful, if rain-soaked Pacific Northwest.

Different from each other in many respects, these two states both seem to have made the decision that their natural assets should not be ruthlessly subordinated to the pursuit of economic goals.

In California no such decision has yet been made. The conservationists there have had some successes and are indeed more impressive in both organization and numbers than their counterparts to the north. But the forces ranged against them are likewise more powerful.

To many Californians their state is synonymous with growth, and to question the desirability of a freeway along the coastline is in some sense to question free enterprise, democracy and the quest for the American dream.

Growth has made California prosperous, has made its citizens number one in ownership of everything from motor cars (more than 17 million vehicles) to swimming pools (about 225,000 in the southern part of the state alone).

But if the growth-mongers have a point, so do the ecofreaks. California is a large state — about 800 miles along the diagonal — and a varied one. Its long coastline is famously spectacular. The snow stays all the year round on Mount Shasta and Mount Whitney, oblivious of the scorching extremes of the Mojave desert, which lies, dusted like Turkish delight, just two hours' drive from Los Angeles.

Their final choice could determine whether the rest of the world will continue to look upon California as a window on the future, or whether that idea will join the long list of exhausted California cliches.
